RATIONALE

"Homework is not an optional extra, but an essential part of a good education." - 1999 White Paper, Excellence in Schools

Home learning is work that is set to be done outside the timetabled curriculum. It contains an element of independent study in that it is not usually directly supervised by a teacher. It is important in raising student achievement.

Not all home learning is done at home; in fact, for some students who find it hard to work at home, or for some tasks which may require resources (books, software, equipment) more readily available at school, it is necessary or desirable to carry out the task at school.

Home learning enhances student learning, improves achievement and develops students' study skills and as such is an integral part of the curriculum. It requires careful planning and integration into the scheme of work of each curriculum area.

THE VALUE OF HOME LEARNING

Home learning has the most positive impact on student learning when:

- It is done by the student to the best of their ability.
- Students have a quiet, designated place at home to complete homework.
- Students develop a routine for completing homework at home.
- Parents are supportive and encouraging.
- Teachers plan for home learning as an integral part of the student learning experience. Setting long, tedious home learning does not improve student learning

How home learning supports learning and development:

- Supports classroom practice enabling students to consolidate and extend learning.
- Enables students to practice skills learnt in the classroom and so deeply embed knowledge.
- Allows students to prepare for new learning activities.
- Allows students to access resources not available in the classroom.
- Promotes personal and independent research skills.
- Allows for differentiation where more able students extend their learning.
- Show progress and understanding.
- Provide feedback in the evaluation of teaching.
- Encourages key behavioural skills such as self-reliance, time management and personal organisation.
- Allows for the testing of knowledge and the practicing of techniques pertinent to criteria for assessment in examinations.
- Engage parental co-operation and support.
- Create channels for home school dialogue.

SETTING AND MARKING OF HOME LEARNING

- Home learning timetables will be issued to students in Key Stages 3 and 4 during at the start of the autumn term, these timetables will also be available on the school's website. Sixth form students are expected to have developed sufficient independent study skills to manage their workload.

- Home learning must be planned for as an integral part of student learning. High quality, coordinated, interesting and well planned home learning will support student achievement.
- Home learning must be purposeful, realistic, meaningful and appropriately challenging for all students.
- Clear deadlines for completion must be provided by the teacher at the time the homework is set and recorded on 'Microsoft Teams'
- Teachers must adhere to the published home learning timetable.
- Home learning will be marked, assessed and feedback will be provided to the students in line with the School's Assessment, Recording and Reporting policy.
- During Key Stage 3, Independent Study will also make up part of the student's home learning allocation. During this time students should engage with personal learning to enhance, support and extend their own learning. Tasks for Independent Study will also be set and monitored by subject teachers

PROCEDURE REGARDING CONCERNS OVER ENGAGEMENT OR HOME LEARNING COMPLETION

- When home learning is not completed, teachers should initially support the student and ensure the tasks set meet the student's needs. If this is so, then the following sanctions should be used:
  1. Class teacher - discussion and negotiation with student, informing parents via student planner and record place on school's management system.
  2. Head of Department - discussion and negotiation with referred student, informing parents by student planner and record on school's management system. Letter to parents and detention if necessary.
  3. Tutors - through weekly monitoring of diaries, identifying students with homework problems across several curriculum areas and refers to Head of Year. Head of Year discusses and negotiates with student, applies sanction or support where appropriate.
- If a parent is concerned over any aspect of home learning, they are encouraged to contact the school immediately either through the use of the student planner or by email.
- Home learning will be monitored by Heads of Department and other school leaders as part of on-going work scrutiny and quality assurance measures.

INCENTIVES

High quality home learning and a good work ethos should be sensitively praised in class. Where appropriate, home learning should be included in display work. Rewards for achievement and sustained effort may be awarded for good home learning. For exceptional pieces of home learning, a department letter or postcard may be sent home.

The role of Parents

The role of the parent is crucial if a child is to gain success from home learning. To reinforce its value through positive feedback will give students the confidence to persevere, work hard and reach high standards of achievement.

Parents can assist by:

- Providing a table, chair and a quiet place to work.
- Negotiating with the student when home learning is to be done as a student's free play is important too.
- Checking the time spent on individual tasks.
- Ensuring that outside clubs do not hamper a child's quality of work and put a child under pressure.
- Checking presentation and content of all home learning being returned to school.
- Signing the home learning planner each week.
- Providing the school with information about any problems through the student planner or by contacting the school directly.
